GOLD AND SILVER.

Although the Territory of Arizona has hitherto achieved its chief reputation abroad through the extent and richness of its precious metals, the half in this respect has never yet been told. The Territory is ribbed from North to South and from East to West with mountain sputs from the Rocky Mountain range, and in each one of these spure, wherever it has been thoroughly prospected, some one or more of the precious metals has been found. At first, when silver builion sold for from $1.20 to $1.30 an ounce, the principal industry of Arizona was silver mining, and gold was but little sought for.
